Dextrys Places Among China's Top 10 IT Outsourcing Enterprises

Dextrys is the Only US-based Company to Earn a Spot in the Top 10

WAKEFIELD, Mass. – July 20, 2009 —Dextrys, a premier US-based China outsourcing firm delivering Product Engineering and Application Services has been recognized as one of China's "Top 10 ITO" enterprises. This honor was bestowed upon Dextrys by leaders of China's Ministry of Information and Industry, the National Development and Reform Commission and the China Software Industry Association during the 2009 China Software & Information Service Outsourcing Summit held in Beijing. Significantly, Dextrys is the only US-based outsourcing firm recognized within the top 10 by these influential Chinese agencies.

This is the fourth, consecutive year that Dextrys has garnered a position among China's top IT outsourcing enterprises. Dextrys' continued recognition is due to the company's performance record and ongoing expansion despite the challenging global economic environment. This year's winning organizations were evaluated based upon internal research and data collected by related industry organizations, such as the China Software and Information Service Outsourcing Industry Alliance (ChinaSourcing), the Ministry of Science and Technology and the the CSIP (China Software and Integrated Circuit Platform).

"We are delighted to be honored again as one of China's Top 10 IT outsourcing organizations," said Brian Keane, CEO of Dextrys. "Over the past year, we have added several new prominent US clients who recognize the advantages of outsourcing to China. Exceptional technical talent, consistent project management and delivery processes and reliable quality have resulted in great value for our clients."
